

contents

Acknowledgments, vii

Contributors, ix

Introduction

Naomi Hetherington and Nadia Valman, 1

1

“We Are Photographers, Not Mountebanks!”:
Spectacle, Commercial Space,
and the New Public Woman

Elizabeth F. Evans, 25

2

Why Wasn't Amy Levy More of a Socialist?
Levy, Clementina Black, and Liza of Lambeth

Emma Francis, 47

3

Between Two Stools: Exclusion and Unfitness
in Amy Levy's Short Stories

Gail Cunningham, 70

4

Amy Levy and the Literary Representation of the Jewess

Nadia Valman, 90

5

“Such Are Not Woman's Thoughts”:
Amy Levy's “Xantippe” and “Medea”

T. D. Olverson, 110

contents

6

“Mongrel Words”: Amy Levy’s Jewish Vulgarly

Susan David Bernstein, 135

7

Passing in the City: The Liminal Spaces of Amy Levy’s Late Work

Alex Goody, 157

8

“A Jewish Robert Elsmere”? Amy Levy, Israel Zangwill,
and the Postemancipation Jewish Novel

Naomi Hetherington, 180

9

Verse or Vitality? Biological Economies and the New Woman Poet

Lyssa Randolph, 198

Afterword

Meri-Jane Rochelson, 221

Selected Bibliography, 227

Index, 237