

contents

	Acknowledgments	ix
	Counting Subjects: Demography and Empire Dennis D. Cordell, Karl Ittmann, and Gregory H. Maddox	I
one	African Historical Demography in the Postmodern and Postcolonial Eras Dennis D. Cordell	22
two	“Where Nature Dominates Man”: Demographic Ideas and Policy in British Colonial Africa, 1890–1970 Karl Ittmann	59
three	How to Count the Subjects of Empire? Steps toward an Imperial Demography in French West Africa before 1946 Raymond R. Gervais and Issiaka Mandé	89
four	Makwerekwere : Separating Immigrants and Natives in Early Colonial Natal Thomas V. McClendon	113
five	Counting and Recounting: Dislocation, Colonial Demography, and Historical Memory in Northern Gabon John M. Cinnamon	130
six	The Discourse of Overpopulation in Western Kenya and the Creation of the Pioneer Corps Meshack Owino	157
seven	Disease and Reproductive Health in Ujiji, Tanganyika: Colonial and Missionary Discourses Regarding Islam and a “Dying Population” Sheryl A. McCurdy	174

CONTENTS

eight	Disease and Environment in Africa: Imputed Dynamics and Unresolved Issues Gregory H. Maddox	198
nine	Reproducing Labor: Colonial Government Regulation of African Women's Reproductive Lives Meredeth Tirshen	217
ten	African Population: Projections, 1850–1960 Patrick Manning	245
	List of Appendices	277
	Contributors	279
	Index	281